

OUR HISTORY

The story of John Scott's begins at the end of the 18th century in an area of Gothenburg called "Wohlfahrts ängar". The buildings in this area were built according to the English style and in addition the plot owner Jacobina Scott, born Barclay, was married to an Englishman, the Reverend John Henry Scott. Therefore, the area was soon renamed the English Quarter. In 1867 the city bought the land from the Scott family. Since then, the area and its properties have been gradually modernized, but the characteristic English interior lives on in today's John Scott's, named in honor of the original landowners.
