

KOREAN BBQ

Korean barbecue, known locally as Gogi-Gui (고기구이), refers to the Korean cuisine method of grilling meat such as beef, pork or chicken on gas or charcoal grills inlaid into the dining table itself. In Soko Korean Charcoal BBQ, we serve a variety of meats by using a portable charcoal BBQ grill. We believe it can produce more flavourful food by the way that juices are vaporised and infused into meats and other foods.

BIBIMBAP

Bibimbap is a Korean dish served as a bowl of rice and topped with fresh seasoned vegetables, and dressed with Gochujang (chilli paste). A raw or fried egg and sliced meat are common additions. The hot dish is stirred together thoroughly just before eating.

SSAM

In Korea, Ssam means "wrapped", leafy vegetables are used to wrap a piece of meat such as pork or other filling. It is often accompanied by a condiment known as Ssamjang (soybean paste) and can also be topped with raw or cooked garlic, onion, green chilli and Banchan (side dish) such as Kimchi.
