The Worshipfull Company of Vintners

The Rt. Worshipfull Company of Vintners beare for their Ensigne Armorial:
*Sable a Chevron between 3 Tunns Argent

The right of Freemen of the Vintners Company, to sell wine in the City of London and within three miles of the walls without an excise licence dates from a Charter of 1567 during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I. The right may also be exercised in certain other cities and ports and along certain highways particularly between London and Dover and London and Berwick.

The earliest known written reference to "the mystery of Vintners" dates from 1321. Edward III granted Letters Patent in 1364 and the first charter is dated 1437. The Vintners have held eleventh place among the Guilds since Plantagenet times. The twelve chief City Companies are these:—Mercers, Grocers, Drapers, Fishmongers, Goldsmiths, Merchant Taylors, Skinners, Haberdashers, Salters, Ironmongers, Vintners and Clothworkers.

In 1363 the then Master of the Company, Sir Henry Pickard, entertained Five Kings at the Vintners Hall. This unique event, now referred to as the Feast of the Five Kings is remembered at Livery Banquets by the giving of five cheers after the toast to the Vintners Company coupled with the name of the Master. The Vintners song which is sung prior to this toast dates from 1702. The chorus runs:—

"Come come let us drink the Vintners Good Health,
'Tis the Cask not the Coffey, that holds the true wealth."
